Election/Restrictions

1. Applicant's election without traverse of claims 22-30, and 35 in the reply filed on July 26, 2005 is acknowledged.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).
4. Claims 22-29, and 35 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Lopez et al. US Patent No. 4,752,292 in view of Burkett et al. US Patent No. 6,582,395 B1. Lopez et al. discloses in figures 1-2, and 22 a conventional feeding system capable of being inserted into a body cavity, duct, or vessel to allow the passage of fluids or distend a passageway, thus discloses a catheter with all limitation cited in claims 22-29, and 35 except for "a balloon disposed adjacent the distal end of the catheter shaft, the balloon being in fluid communication with the inflation lumen". However, US Patent to Burkett et al. shows at the time of the invention a balloon used at the distal end of a catheter was well known in the art. Burkett et al. in figure 9 teach a balloon (44) situated adjacent a distal end (end inserted into the patient) of a catheter shaft (10), also teach the balloon is in fluid communication with an inflation lumen (26).

Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skills in the art to modify the feeding system of Lopez et al. in view of Burkett et al. to include a balloon because Burkett et al. teach the balloon would help secure the catheter in place when the catheter is inserted into a patient (see col.8 lines 13-16).

5. Claim 30 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Lopez et al. US Patent No. 4,752,292, Burkett et al. US Patent No. 6,582,395 B1, and in view of as applied to claims 22-29 above, and further in view of Imran et al. US Patent No. 5,779,688. Imran et al. teaches a catheter in figure 12 comprising a cap member 214 disposed on top of a sealing member 216. Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skills in the art to modify the feeding system of Lopez et al. as modified by Burkett et al. and in view of Imran et al. to include a cap over a sealing means/member because Imran et al. teach the cap can be used to compress the sealing member (see col.9 lines 49-52).
